Letters To The Editor

Editor Burton Neal Levy

I got the MEC NEWSLETTER and you certainly deserve a pat on the back. You did a fine job on it. If MEC had more good workers like yourself it would definately be a success. - Lloyd E. Wagaman

I'm writing to congratulate you on the fine bulletin issued. This newsletter marks a turning point in our young organization. - David J. Singer

The OCT-NOV-DEC NEWSLETTER is good, keep up the good work. My thanks to Ralph for the free elongated he donated. - Jack Wilcox

As a new member of MEC I thought I would write and tell you my first impressions.

I think that Burton Levy did a very good job on the last newsletter. I liked the question box very much even though I could not answer any of them. I found David J. Singer's Elongated Column most interesting. (David please keep up the good work.)

I would also like to thank Ralph W. Jobe for the free coin I received with the newsletter. I hope to have a long and lasting relationship with MEC. - Paul Aubry

Many thanks for the enclosed elongated coin received in the last club newsletter. Enclosed circulars also were most welcome, and will be used to add to my collection. I am looking forward to the next communication. - Lawrence S. Zylko

Thank you for sending me the information about "MEC". I found it interesting and I'm submitting my application for membership in MIDWEST ELONGATED COLLECTORS.

And now a question for a start. In your newsletter you have a list with initials and their names. It would be appropriate to indicate as to who is a roller & who is a dealer. Also some of the names who operate under trade names. Example: Elmer Anderson is also Pontiac Press and R.W. Luchtman is also L.P. Engravers.

I think it is interesting for the collector to know all facts about the hobby. - Abe Gefter

I enjoyed the last MEC newsletter very much. I was greatful for the initials and list of rollers. - Elton Parsons

RE: BUT IT'S ELONGATED - OCT-NOV-DEC NEWSLETTER

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT: JACK WILCOX

I've seen the rolled blank coins you've mentioned in your article priced @ $5 - $7 on quarters, nickels, etc. I doubt anyone would bite at these prices, especially when more than one blank elongated is being offered by the same dealer.

These blank rolls I'd say were done to catch the unwary. The dealer I saw with a few diff. coins knew nothing about elongateds. (Cause I got an unlisted from him cheaper than the blanks.)

WANTED - Does anyone have a TEC Miami Beach 1967 convention badge? I also want elongated coins from New Jersey. Send offers to: Paul Aubry, 128 Jane St., Englewood, N.J. 07631

COLLECTING ELONGATED COINS
BY HAROLD SNYDER

I began collecting elongated coins back in 1962. I bought 5 different elongated cents that I saw advertised in 'Numismatic News' by a dealer in Oregon. I became interested in them and sent for more wherever I saw them advertised. I also pick them up at the flea markets and coin and antique shows.

Although I have them on many different coins, I specialize in Lincoln cents, both wheat and memorial types. I try to get the same elongated coin on both types of Lincoln cents if possible. Also with the reverse side visible. I find it makes collecting elongated coins more interesting and enjoyable and adds more variety to a collection.

"THE BREAD ROLLERS"
By David J. Singer

When friends met on the street in 1933 and 1934, the first thing they said was, "Are you working?" On the corner was a man selling apples. The sign on the box of apples read, "Apples 5¢ Veteran." People on the same corner were waiting to get on the street car. A couple of shabbily dressed men dashed up and picked up the discarded cigarette butts thrown away by the men getting on the street car. Cigarettes were sold for one cent each in many smoke shops. Five cents bought a hot dog on a bun, with piccalilli, a piece of tomato, onions, and a batch of french fries.

At the Chicago World's Fair in 1933 the lowest price that a souvenir could be purchased was a roll-out made on the customers penny for a nickel. And they could see it made. This was an important selling point, because it held their interest and made a conversation piece.

All the roll-outs made outside the Century of Progress grounds (the elongate term was never used) were unofficial. Who were these men who made and sold elongate coins? Where did they come from? How did they operate?

Remember, there were no elongate organizations. There were no books on elongate coins, and the term "elongate" was not coined yet. So why did these men during the depression become interested in the creation of souvenir coins called roll-outs?

These 1933 and 1934 rollers were men who followed state and county fairs, selling balloons and various toys and souvenirs; they did odd jobs. They were small store keepers (Momma and Poppa stores). And most of them got to know my boss Bert Elmer, who was responsible for the official Century of Progress roll-outs. These rollers were interested in one thing - trying to eke out a living-to earn "a piece of bread." That was their only interest in creating and selling the souvenir made on a penny.

They kept their machines in the little stores that dotted the streets off the South exits and entrances. The 12th street and 18th street gates were inside the Chicago parks and no stores were around for blocks. At these gates the tired out Fair-goers got on the street cars, the buses or cabs, and tried to escape the usual crowds to get to their destination - home.

At the South gates the people would have to pass the small stores to get to public transportation. Stores that sold groceries, for example, took on the selling of Century of Progress souvenirs. The stores would charge the roller straight rent, sometimes a percentage of the business. I recall one roller who brought his machine near one of the South gates on a make-shift wheel-barrow. These rollers did not keep regular hours. If it rained or the weather was chilly, they wouldn't even open. (The official Century of Progress rollers were on regular jobs and weather good or bad were "on the job.")

When the crowds were heavy, they could get ahead a few dollars. The price to make "a souvenir on your penny" was five cents. It took plenty of nickels to make up the initial cost of a roll-out machine. Yet there were many of them, for unlisted elongates keep popping up. From Bert Elmer, I recall hearing a figure of $ 25.00. I presume the machine cost that amount with the engraving. However, this was big money for these "bread rollers", who during the bitter depression, in drab weather-beaten clothes, gambled their few bucks to scratch out a piece of bread.

WHAT IS THAT COIN WORTH?
BY BURTON NEAL LEVY

"Who determines the value of that rolled-out coin", an inquisitive friend asked. The only logical answer I could think of at the time was 'SUPPLY AND DEMAND'. As I thought of my answer I decided it was reasonable and concise.

It is unfortunate that there is not a current price evaluation of elongated coins. If we only had a book similar to 'THE BLUE BOOK' and 'THE RED BOOK' many collectors would literally save money in their purchases. I personally feel that there are several 'TOP COLLECTORS' who are quite knowledgeable to compile books of this nature, but are afraid to because their honest evaluations may cause a reduction in the value of their present collections. (To this date many outrageous prices have been paid for pieces which were found to be not as SCARCE as expected.)

For every elongated coin listed in Dottie Dow's book, 'THE ELONGATED COLLECTOR', I have an index card. When I receive prices realized from various auctions, I enter the price which it sold for accordingly. Unfortunately I don't have going prices on all the coins, but I do have a good portion of the coins that personally interest me. This cross index has tremendously helped me in the evaluation of many pieces and it has guided my purchases and sales. Perhaps this system may help you.

So in the meantime don't be pressed into buying an elongated coin you need with an inflated price ticket. Wait, be patient, you may see it priced for your pocketbook another time. After all, as one collector had said to me, "I can't have every elongated coin which was made, in my collection".

THE QUESTION BOX

Q. - How many MEC elongated coins were rolled? Is the die retired?
 A. - Yes the die is retired. (35) dimes were rolled and given to MEC Charter Members. (200) cents were rolled which are available for 50¢ each.

Q. - Who has engraved the most modern elongated dies?
 A. - R.W. Luchtman.

Q. - Is C.J. Meccarello and Jack Meccariello related?
 A. - Yes they are brothers. The difference in the spelling of their last names was caused by an error in birth certificates.

Q. - I'm confused! I saw one dealer selling SOCmo 3 for 75¢ and another selling it for $ 7.50. Apparently one is a re-roll. Which one should I buy?
 A. - The best buy naturally is the re-roll. They are both from the same die so take advantage of it.
